"WE do not hesitate to declare our opinion that the poetical powers displayed in it are of a very superior kind—Conceptions more lofty and daring, sentiments more commanding, and language more energetic, will not easily be found:—nor does scarcely any part of it sink into languor, as the glow of feelings and genius animates the whole. The language is, for the most part, modelled on that of Milton; and not unfrequently, it has a strong relish of Shakespeare."

PHILADELPHIA,

WEDNESDAY EVENING, JANUARY 16

The following is from the CRITICAL REVIEW, a Democratic publication.

NORTH-AMERICA.

THE negotiations between the American and French republics have excited so much attention, that our readers will not be displeased if we enter into some detail upon the subject.

An important message from the president of the United States, was communicated, on the 19th of March, to the two legislative assemblies. The substance of it may thus be stated. Though the exertions of the American envoys for the adjustment of all differences were sincere and unremitted, there was no ground of expectation that the objects of their mission would be accomplished on terms compatible with the honor or safety of the nation. It was therefore necessary that the two councils should adopt such measures as would tend to the protection of seafaring and trading citizens, to the increase of the stores of war, and the defence of exposed portions of territory; and should provide supplies for defraying extraordinary expences, and compensating the deficiencies which might be occasioned by depredations on commerce. They were particularly conjured by the president to manifest, in all their proceedings, such zeal, vigor, and concert, in defence of the national rights, as might be proportioned to the danger with which those rights were threatened.

At the desire of the house of representatives, the president submitted the dispatches of the envoys to the inspection of the legislative body. The contents of these papers are curious.

From these documents it appears, that general Pinckney and his diplomatic associates (Marshall and Gerry) were treated, on their arrival at Paris*, with great disrespect; that some observations made by the president † in a speech to the congress had given offence to the directory ‡, and that an apologetic explanation was demanded, as a preliminary to negotiatory conferences. The person who intimated this demand, added, that a sum of money would be necessary to secure a favorable reception from the directory, and that a considerable loan would also be expedient. Another agent, the confidential friend of the minister Talleyrand, informed the envoys, that, when an explicit apology should have been made, the French republic would prepare for the completion of a treaty, which should place the two states in the the same predicament with regard to each other, in which they stood in the year 1778; or, in other words, a treaty which would allow the French the same advantages that were enjoyed by the English in their trade with the subjects of the United States; but that an essential part of the agreement would be the advance of money. This loan, he observed, might be so disguised, that the British court, which might otherwise consider is as a breach of neutrality, would not be offended. When he was asked whether the directory might not be induced to recede from the demand of an apology, he replied, that he knew only one mode of application which would tempt them to wave it—that was, the offer of money. The spirit of sordid rapacity which was thus exhibited, disgusted the envoys; and having expressed their surprize at such demands, they requested time for consulting their employers, promising, that, if the French would desist from all captures of American ships, one of the three should make an immediate voyage for additional instructions. The agent was dissatisfied with this proposal, and reverting to the requisition of an apology, he desired to know whether the ministers were ready to comply. They answered, that they had no power to invalidate any part of the President's speech: that such an attempt would expose them to the risque of recall; and that even if they should disavow the offensive passages, the public opinion respecting the public opinion respecting the truth of the imputations would still remain the same.

The former of the two agents, in an interview which took place soon after the signature of the definitive treaty with the emperor, affirmed, that the directory had, since that peace, assumed a higher and more decisive tone towards neutral powers than had before been used, and intended to treat as enemies all nations which should refuse to assist the French. He therefore urged the expediency of submission; but Mr. Pinckney declared that he could not acquiesce; and that if the French should attack his countrymen, they must have recourse to the best means of self defence. The agent now renewed the demand of pecuniary advances; and he did not scruple to say, that the rulers of France had no regard to justice, and that money alone could influence them. The envoy still resisted; and when the Frenchman warned them of the danger of refusal, and boasted of the power of his country, they replied that they were fully sensible of those points, and wished to be on friendly terms with the nation; but that America would not purchase the friendship of any state by the surrender of her independence; that she had a right to be neutral; that to advance money to a belligerent power would be to deviate from her neutrality; that to agree to such a loan, 'under the lash and coertion of France, would be to relinquish the government of herself, and submit to a foreign government imposed by force;' and that, if she could tamely suffer her rights to be invaded, her reputation would be irretrievably lost.

A private conference soon followed between Mr. Gerry and M. Talleyrand. The French minister proposed, that 50,000 pounds sterling should be given without delay by way of douceur; and that one of the envoys should return to America to procure the assent of the congress to a loan; but he declared, that, in the mean time, the directory would not receive the two other ministers, and that the commercial depredations were not to be discontinued. This arrogant and domineering behaviour could not be expected to prove successful.

The friend of Talleyrand afterwards made an attempt which he termed 'a last effort to serve' the envoys, though it tended to the enforcement of ignominious terms. He called their attention to the situation of the United States, and to the power of France. He hoped that they would not deceive themselves with the idea of a full ability of resistance, on the part of their countrymen, but would reflect on the fate of Venice, which might soon be that of the American republic. They might perhaps trust, he said, to the probability of a league with Great-Britain; but such confidence would be fallacious. An army of 150,000 men, commanded by the gallant and able Buonaparte, might be enabled to invade this island; in which event a complete conquest would ensue: or, if the invasion should not take place, the alarm which the menace of a descent would diffuse through the realm, would occasion such enormous expences as would drive the ministry into a peace. But, even if the English should be able to continue the war, and the Americans should join them, they would not have any opportunities of inflicting much injury upon France. On the other hand, the advantages which the United States might derive from an acquiescence in the desires of the French, would be very considerable, and, in case of the destruction of the British government, would be particularly great, as the wealth and arts of the English would pass over to America.

The delegates of the congress were unmoved by these representations, and disdained the thoughts of submission. They replied, that the treatment received by the Americans from the French proved an ill return for that friendship of which the former had given unequivocal testimonies, at a time when the latter were threatened with ruin by a confederacy so powerful and so decidedly hostile, that it was even dangerous to be on terms of amity with them.

To a state thus friendly, 'what (said the envoys, in a style of manly, indignant, and just reproach) is the conduct and the language of France? Wherever our property can be found, she seizes it, unprovoked, she determines to treat us as enemies; and our non-resistance produces no diminution of hostility against us; she abuses and insults our government, endeavors to weaken it in the estimation of the people, recalls her own minister, refuses to receive our's; and, when extraordinary means are taken to make such explanations as may remove misunderstandings, and such alterations in the existing relations of the two countries as may tend to produce harmony, the envoys who bear these powers, are not permitted to utter the amicable wishes of their country; but it is intimated to them, in the haughty style of a master, that unless they will pay a sum to which their resources scarcely extend, the United States may expect, like Venice, to be erased from the list of nations; that France will annihilate the only free republic upon earth, and the only nation in the universe which has manifested for her a cordial friendship!' This short statement exhibits a striking picture of French insolence, ingratitude, and iniquity.

In this unsettled state the negociation remained during the winter. At length the envoys being again desired to declare, whether they would accept or reject the offered terms, Messrs. Pinckney and Marshall chose the latter part of the alternative. Their departure from France was the consequence of their refusal; but Mr, Gerry, it is said, has been permitted to remain. All parties must unite in condemning the conduct of the French on this occasion. Disgusting haughtiness, unprincipled rapacity, and gross injustice, mark their proceedings. The Americans, on the contrary, have testified a regard both to prudence and honor. They have studiously labored to avoid a war; but, if they should be driven to that extremity, they have both the spirit and the power to defend themselves.

‡ The remarks that displeased the French were those which referred to the aggressions committed by them, and which were followed by a spirited exhortation to the congress:—such attempts (said the president) ought to be repelled with a decision which shall convince France and the world, that we are not a degraded people, humiliated under a colonial sense of fear, fitted to be the miserable instruments of foreign influence, and regardless of national honour, character, and interest.'

Late Foreign Articles

DUBLIN, Oct. 25.

Lord Cornwallis has at length determined to act rigorously against the rebels. His last amnesty expired yesterday, and to-morrow, 1000 men march towards Wexford, to settle that miserable country.

In an address presented to him on Thursday from the Nobility and Gentry of that county, the following strong fact was stated: "Of 530 persons relieved by the Commissioners for aiding the suffering loyalists, 482 have been the widows of murdered county of Wexford Protestants." His Excellency assured them that such measures had been taken, as promised to relieve that unhappy county.

The daring and desperate ravager Holt, after having so long set the powers of government at defiance—and rioted in the blood and plunder of the loyal inhabitants of the Counties of Wicklow, Wexford, Carlow, and Kildare, has, we hear, recently had the audacity to send proposals of capitulation to Government, for the pardon of himself and his gang, finding such measures are on foot, as to render his destruction utterly inevitable; but those proposals have been treated with the contempt they deserve.

Such decisive steps will be immediately taken towards this sanguinary miscreant and his rapacious followers, as well as towards the numerous petty gangs who have for some time past perpetrated numberless murders and robberies in his name, as must by a terrible example convince wretches of their description, that the justice of the country cannot long, with impunity, be trifled with.

VIENNA, Oct. 17.

According to the latest intelligence received from Malta, it is reported that the French were still occupying the castle St. Elmo, though they offered to capitulate, which was refused by the Maltesians, and requested to surrender at discretion. Their number which amounted to 5000 men according to the declaration of General Buonaparte, is at present greatly decreased. The national cockade is at present every where torn off from the French, and the arms of Malta again reinstated; it is however for the present without foundation, that the Russians landed, or were even seen before Malta with the English, or conquered Valette, though it is expected that it will take place before long.

The news that forty thousand Russians which are to serve as English auxiliary troops against Holland, were embarked at Revel, was also in circulation.

When this paper went to press it was reported that intelligence was received that general Buonaparte had surrendered himself with his troops by capitulation. This wants special confirmation.

ITALY, Oct. 11.

The declaration of war on the part of England against Genoa, has caused the greatest sensation, as it is certain that the Genoese trade will greatly suffer by it.

It is reported that an English squadron has already blockaded the port of Genoa, and the port of Spezzia is garrisoned by French troops for its protection.

LONDON, October 17.

The river is at present unusually crowded with merchant ships—Their number is computed to amount to upwards of five thousand.

Our naval force for the protection of the Western coast of Ireland consists of the Triumph, Saturn, of 74 guns, and the Polyphemus and Lancaster, of 64 guns, and twelve stout frigates.

Government have entered into a contract with Russia to victual our navy with pork; this is owing to the extreme low price of that article throughout England.

Sir Sidney Smith went down yesterday to Dropmore on a visit to Lord Grenville. He takes leave in the course of this week for his intended expedition; a beautiful model of a first rate man of war is to be sent out with him as a present to the Emperor of Morocco.

The price of salt-petre has lately advanced near 60 per cent. Several articles of drugs are also increased lately beyond all precedent.

The ship Fame, of and from Baltimore, last from Greenock, bound for Liverpool, in ballast, commanded by Nathaniel Tupper, struck on the Long Rock off Ballywater, at two o'clock on Saturday morning, in a gale of wind at E. S. S. where she lies a wreck with her bottom out.

October 21.

The Hamburgh mail due on Sunday last, arrived yesterday. It states, orders had been issued by the Ottoman government for 18 sail of the line and a proportionate number of frigates, immediately to sail from Sibastopoli, to act in concert with the Russian fleet in the Mediterrannean. They are to take on board 8000 troops. The Russian squadron under Admiral Uschakow, comprised 10 sail of the line.

The Grand Signor has manifested in his recent conduct, extraordinary decision and activity. One hundred thousand recruits are now raising to reinforce the armies in Europe; and considerable levies are carrying on in Asia. The late Vizier has been banished to Scio, for his attachment to France. His successor is the avowed and implacable enemy to the republic.

The Hamburg Gazette of the 9th contains the following article;

By accounts from Italy of the 24th ult. it appears, that advice was received at Florence on the 18th ult. by letters from Rome, that the war between Naples and France, has already commenced without any declaration. The French troops are said to have passed the Neapolitan frontiers on the 12th ult. (The latest letters from Vienna mention however, nothing of this.)

The French commander in chief, Brune, arrived on the 21st ult. at Turie, from Milan. His journey is thought to have for its object, the bloody scenes which took place on the 16th ult. between the French and Piedmontese troops, in which the latter were supported by the inhabitants—The city of Turin has caused 5000 livres to be distributed among the Piedmontese soldiers who contributed to the restoration of tranquility. The fortress of Alessenandria, and several more on the Piedmontese frontiers, are supplied with provisions, and, and put farther in a state of defence.

The States of Bavaria have voted provisions for the establishment of an army of 25,000 men, which is to be commanded by Count de Sedwitz.

Letters from Frankfort of the 2d instant state, on the morning of that day, general Joubert had set off for Paris, in consequence of peremptory orders from the directory to that effect.

General Staader, the commander in chief of the army of the Empire, has ordered the whole train of artillery, removed to Braunau, to join him without delay at Friedburg, and that 20,000 Austrians have received orders to advance towards Ulm.

The Dublin mail of the 17th arrived this morning; it is singularly barren of news. The following articles are all we could collect from it:

Early on Thursday morning a detachment of the Duke of York's Highlanders, commanded by major Meredith, fell in with Holt and his party, at a village near the Glen of Finmal. The darkness of the morning favored the escape of the rebels, except 17 who were killed and one wounded:—from the latter, who was made prisoner, some useful information has been obtained. Holt was shot through the thigh, and wounded in the foot, but contrived to crawl to some distance from the scene of action, when meeting with a horse, he was just able to mount, and thus for the present eluded the punishment that awaits him.

Neill, one of the leaders of Holt's banditti, has been apprehended in a house near Baltinglass, concealed between two beds—he was dressed in the coat taken from the Cork mail guard, and had about 40l. in cash and notes.

The Dublin mail of the 18th continues due. The Waterford Mail of the 17th arrived, but did not bring any intelligence worthy mention.

The state prisoners in Ireland have received notice to prepare for their departure for America.

Ennisorthy, in the county of Wexford, is reported, but we hope without foundation, to be now in the hands of the Rebels.

Sixteen out of the twenty parts of the commerce between Europe and Asia are said to be in possession of Britain.

A paper has lately been established in Paris by some of the Representatives who oppose the Directory, and is conducted by those whose names its title bears. The brother of Buonaparte also frequently writes for it. It is called "the Correspondence of the Representatives of the People, Stevenottee (of the Sambre and Meuse) Dessaix (of Mont Blanc) Dethier (of the Ourthe) and several other Deputies with their Constituents."

A Paris paper of the 11th states the arrival of part of Admiral Nelson's fleet at Naples, on the 18th ult. where the Noble Hero of the Nile was himself expected to arrive on the following day, on his way home. The king of Naples went out to sea more than two leagues to meet the English ships, and received the officers with every possible testimonial of approbation and joy. The account adds, 'we hope falsely, that Admiral Nelson has been obliged to destroy three of his prizes on account of the irreparable damage they had sustained in the engagement. The Guillaume Tell, of 74 guns, one of the French ships which escaped from the Nile, and two frigates, are said, to have arrived at Malta.

The Hamburgh letters state, that the Captain Pacha was about to sail for Egypt with a large fleet, and a great number of troops on board.

The Russian and Turkish squadrons consist of 24 sail of the line. The former has 5,000 troops on board. The first operations will be directed against the islands in the Adriatic, which France wrested from Venice. Malta will also be closely blockaded.

We are happy to state the safe arrival at Lisbon of the Leander, of 50 guns supposed to have been captured on her passage from the Nile. and that the two French frigates which escaped after that important victory are confidently reported to have been taken by the Colossus, of 74 guns, in her passage up the Mediterranean.

The Emperor of Morocco, it appears, is now actually at war with the Hanseatic League. The French Papers say, that his cruisers have late captured three vessels—one from Bremen—a second from Hamburg—and a third bearing Prussian colours.

The Paris papers to the 13th state, that Buonaparte had left a garrison of 6 000 men in Cairo, and after having defeated the Arabsin several actions, had taken Suez, on the Red Sea—That he added 15 000 Arabian Cavalry, had several thousand Mamaluke Infantry to his Army—That he possessed himself of Syria; and that the Signior, and the Divan had expressed the highest gratification at his success:—So much for the Paris accounts of Buonaparte.

The Journals add that Mustapha, late Governor of Belgrade, had raised at Philopoppoli, the standard of revolt against the Porte; that a revolt had taken place in Natolia; and that a general ferment existed throughout the Turkish Empire. The latter intelligence is in a degree confirmed by the Hamburg Mail, which adds, that in the Neapolitan territory, the French Emissaries have contrived to prejudice the people against the new levies of men. At Portice, St. George, and other places, the Insurgents have appeared in great numbers: but hopes are entertained that order will soon be restored.—The Austrians have formed four camps in the late Venitian territory, and are throwing up entrenchments along the Adige.

PORTSMOUTH, Oct. 19.

A cutter is just arrived from St. Marcou, being the third which within a few days have come here with dispatches; from which, and a combination of other circumstances, we are strongly of opinion, that the ill success of their former visit has not deterred the French from again, and immediately, attacking those Islands. It appears that in the 8th and 10th inst. six more powerful gun vessels, and a schooner, went from Cherbourg to La Hogue, from whence they occasionally pass to Isigny river, apparently full of troops. A French gentleman came here from Normandy with it asserted, accounts of encreased, or organized disaffection against the Directory, and other intelligence of much importance. I learn that the Beaulieu, of 40 guns, Capt Fayrman, has received orders to prepare to immediately proceed for the West Indies. Sir Sidney Smith is arrived from London, in, I am concerned to hear, but indifferent health. He, however, soon as the wind permits, sails for the Mediterranian, to add to his distinguished reputation, and the already unparalleled glory of his country.

PLYMOUTH, October 22.

Arrived the Fishguard frigate of 48 guns, commanded by Thomas Byam Martin, with the Immortalite French frigate of 42 guns, having a commodore's broad pendant, which she captured on Saturday the 20th instant, a few leagues from Ushant, after a desperate action of 2 hours and an half, in which the former had about 40 killed and wounded, and the latter 153. The Immortalite carries 24 four pounders on her main deck, and four 44 pound carronades on her quarter; the others 12 and 9 pounders, her complement of men was originally 300—she is very much cut in her hull, her mizen mast is carried by the board, and her fore and main-masts severely wounded—she is an exceeding fine frigate, four years old and sails remarkably fast. She is one of the three frigates which appeared in Donegal bay, on the coast of Ireland some days since—300 troops were embarked in her from France, has 7000 stand of arms and a large quantity of horse equipage on board. The 1st and 2d captains, and the general commanding the troops, with several of the latter were killed in the action. When met with by the Fishguard, she was on her return to France without landing any of the troops, having received intelligence of the disastrous fate of the army under Gen. Humbert, which induced them to relinquish the favorite project of invasion.—An Irish revenue boat went along side, conceiving she was an English ship from having false colours, the crew of which were detained as prisoners, and obliged to act as pilots. About 50 Irish gentlemen went on board her whilst she continued on the coast, seven of whom are said to be in irons on board the Fishguard, who, from the friendintercourse that appeared to subsist between them and the enemy, may naturally be considered as no very good friends to their own country.

Previous to falling in with the Fishguard, she was said to have engaged and beat off an English frigate of superior force! but this, as it is bare assertion of their own, needs confirmation.

The Immortalite was one of the squadron which sailed from Brest, consisting of one ship of the line and 8 frigates; they proceeded a great way to the westward, and then tacked and stood for Ireland, but L'Immortalite and another frigate, separated in a gale before they reached the place of destination. She brings intelligence that her consort has also been taken by an English frigate, but knows nothing of the general action that has taken place near Tory island.

P. S. General Monge, second in command, and also the French captain, were both killed at the same moment, near the wheel by a cannot shot.

The French officers express their doubts of their being able to succeed in an expedition against Ireland, and seem to think that further attempts on that country, are likely to prove as fruitless as the preceding ones. The French soldiers appear to be picked men, being mostly stout fellows, dressed in green Hussar uniforms, flowered with pink, having a standard on board of a green ground, with a harp composed of yellow bunting in the middle, which was displayed when they came on the Irish coast, as a signal to their friends on shore.

The ships of war which arrived here yesterday from the channel fleet, are the Queen Charlotte of 110 guns, Formidable, and Atlas, of 98 guns each, under the command of Vice-Admiral Sir Charles Thompson.

The Shannon frigate of 32 guns, captain A. Fraser, in coming into the harbor this morning, ran ashore at the entrance of the harbor of Hamoaze, but was got off without material injury.

LONDON, Nov. 1.

It is with much pleasure we have to add another naval capture to the numerous catalogue which our brave heroes have of late afforded us an opportunity of presenting to our readers. Advice was yesterday received of the capture of a Dutch frigate with 200 troops on board, by his majesty's ship Sirius, of 36 guns, captain King, belonging to admiral Onslow's squadron. The Sirius fell in with the captured ship to the northward of the Texel: On coming up with her, she struck without firing a shot. Captain King no sooner took possession of her, than he went in pursuit of another vessel of the same description, with every probability of being able to come up with her. It is conjectured that they were both going the northern voyage to Ireland, under the idea that the Brest squadron had effected a debarcation of its troops in that country. This pleasing intelligence was brought to Yarmouth by one of His majesty's cutters.

BASSATERRE, Dec. 18.

William Armstrong, esq. arrived here on Sunday last from Martinique, he left Falmouth on the 15th November, in the second October packet, and had a passage of 20 days to Barbadoes. We have been favoured with London papers to the 1st of November; one of the 27th October says, That a treaty of alliance, offensive and defensive, between England and America, is reported to be at this moment on the tapis.

Arethusa, off La Hogue, Oct. 17.

In consequence of having received intelligence, off Havre, that considerable preparations were making in this quarter to attack the Isles of St. Marcou, we came here yesterday, and have reason to think that the report was not wholly without foundation. Several gun vessels came round Cape Barfleur from Cherbourgh, and had been for some days parading about this bay; but they disappeared just before our arrival, and, 'tis said, are gone for Havre, where a considerable force is already assembled.

A few nights ago four marines, who were contiguous sentries on the West Island of St. Mrreou, with an effrontery unparalleled, got the guard to launch a six oared cutter, asserting that Captain Price had so ordered it; and, with their arms, &c. accompanied by a sailor, made off to the French coast, part of which was but four miles distant. The ill consequences of possessing the enemy of the exact state of that island, in particular, considerable as they are, cannot be put in competition with the apprehended disaffection of many of the late comrades of these villians, fourteen of whom were on the point of following them, when the plot was happily discovered.

Translated for the [N. Y.] Daily Advertiser, from the latest Hamburgh papers.

NAPLES, October 5.

The Maltese have been supplied with arms and ammunition by the English, and continue to oppose the French.

The arrival of the French minister La Combe St. Michel, has revived the prospect of peace with France. Our war preparations continue with redoubled vigour.

General Mack is expected here momently; report says, that the combined Austrian and Turkish fleets have arrived at Napole di Romania, in the island of Morea.

It is said that the French garrison at Malta have offered to leave it and to depart on board the Portegueſe squadron. The city of Genoa is under great apprehensions of a bombardment by the English.

The revenue of the Cisalpine republic amounts at present to 74 millions 223,980 livres, viz. military establishment, 21 millions 707,100 livres, tribute to France, 23 millions 250,000 livres, &c. the sums required for next years establishment, amounts to above 29 millions imperial guilders; and the population of the Cisalpine republic amounts to 3 millions.

REGANSBURG, October 21.

A report gains ground that an English and Russian ambassador are to make their appearance at Rastadt with a prospect for a general peace; and that if not accepted the coalition, with increased numbers, will have recourse to arms.

CADIZ, September 28.

Within 3 weeks we have seen several American vessels with sugar, Cocoa, &c. arrive in this port from our colonies. It is supposed that the English who blockade our harbours, have, in consideration of the alliance subsisting between England and America, allowed them to pass, while other neutrals, as Swedes and Danes, are daily turned off and refused.

PARIS, November 1.

It having been discovered that the enemies squadrons, privateers and other vessels, are partly manned with foreigners, the directory by an ordinance of 29th October decrees;—each person a native of countries connected in friendship, alliance, or neutral, who bears a commission from the enemies of France, or who belongs to the crew of armed ships or other vessels; shall by this very act be considered as pirates, and as such he dealt with, without any regard to allegations of having been forced, threatened or otherwise compelled to enter that service—the directory of the Batavian, Ligurian, Cisalpine and Roman Republic shall be notified of this determination; as also all the powers in Alliance with France, and also the neutrals.

November 5.

To day an answer to the War Manifesto of the Porte, has made its appearance, which the Propagateur stiles an indirect official answer of the government; the following remarks are noticed: those that accuse, ask, by what right we have unexpectedly attacked a country belonging to the Grand Seignior, our ally, to exercise against the Egyptian Beys, great vengeance? It is true this expedition was a secret, but only from the British government; the Porte was well acquainted with the views of the French government; its ambassadors had conferences about it with the directory, and the Porte did confer with citizen Ruffin in Constantinople. The object of the expedition was not concealed from the Porte. Buonaparte began by conquering Malta—the Porte was informed that this was his errand: this appears from a letter of its ambassador Ali Effendi, wherein he advises, that the minister Talleyrand had told him that Buonaparte was to take Malta, which would prove an agreeable occurrence to every Musselman. Will they say that this is the only prospect confided to the Porte? Its Manifesto will give an answer to it—it is said in it, that citizen Ruffin had delivered copies of letters, wherein the Directory communicates to him that Buonaparte had orders to enter Egypt, to punish the Beys, and injure the English,—of course, there is no doubt, all has been done to the certain knowledge of the Porte, since, at the instigation of the British, the tone is altered, and now only complaints begin to appear. She does not complain of the French government, but only of Buonaparte, who made this inroad without permission of the Directory, and only, but after the battle of Abukir, appeared the Turkish Manifesto.

The following letter from the well known Paris youth, to the meddler, Logan, would merit attention at this time, if it went only to shew that this impudent pretender to patriotism actively co-operated, heretofore, with the very worst men in society, in laboring to "stop de veels of dis government."

INTERCEPTED LETTER.

MONROE to LOGAN.

PARIS, June 24, 1795.

DEAR SIR,

I GIVE you within a short sketch of the actual state of things here, a copy of which, I likewise send to one or two other friends, of whom Mr. BECKLEY is one. If you and Mr. BECKLEY, if in Philadelphia, deem it worthy the attention, I have no objection to your inserting it in BACHE's paper, the first paragraph excepted, and if you likewise approve, I will hereafter keep you regularly apprized of the course of events whereby the community at large may be more correctly informed of the progress of the revolution than they have heretofore been, or can be, from the English prints. The character will be, "from a Youth at Paris, to his friend in Philadelphia,"—occasionally varied as from some other quarter, as Bourdeaux, that it may not appear to be a regular thing: though in that respect, act as you please, for as truths only will be communicated and with temperance, it is immaterial what the conjecture is, provided it be only conjecture.

You promised me a visit: cannot you yet make it, as we shall be very happy to see you and Mrs. LOGAN, and will certainly make your time as comfortable as possible. In your absence, Mr. BECKLEY can attend to the little object* of my communications, for I wish you and him to act in concert whilst he is is in that neighborhood, and indeed if you were both absent, you will arrange matters confidently with Mr. B. himself, who likewise possesses mine.

I beg you to present my respects to DOCTORS RITTENHOUSE and RUSH, and that you believe me sincerely,

Your friend and servant,

JAMES MONROE.

From the N. Y. Commercial Advertiser.

By the schr. Ajax, Capt. Wheeler, from St. Kitts we have positive accounts that Victor Hughes was arrested by the new Governor at Guadaloupe, and close confined on board of a frigate there; as soon as he could make out his account current with his American Agents, was to sail for France. This was brought by a Cartel vessel from Guadaloupe the day before capt. Wheeler sailed; a few days previous to which, the Pedrix sloop of war of 18 6 pounders, brought in Victor Hughes's privateer ship, No. 1 of 18, 12, and 18 pounders, and 175 men, which she took after an action of 40 minutes; and that there were 5 others carried into St. Kitts and Antigua from 16 to 8 guns each.

From the Courier, October 23.

Saturday night some dispatches for Mr. Liston his majesty's envoy to America, were made up at the secretary of state's office, in Downing-street, and sent to Falmouth where they are to be put on board the Lady Harriot, a new packet, which has the American mails on board, which is ordered to sail immediately for New-York. The packet goes no further than New-York till April next (according to custom during the winter months.) The Halifax and Quebec Mails will be forwarded from New-York over land.

It is understood that the new Packet, which carries out the American Mail, and is now under orders for sailing, will also convey to America a treaty of offensive and defensive alliance between the two countries. Times, Oct 24

CONGRESS,

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

TUESDAY, January 15.

Mr. Otis moved that the report made at the last session on the petition of Thomas Cox and others, be referred to a committee of the whole house.—Agreed.

Mr. Harper, from the committee of ways and means, said, that that committee having received from the Secretary of the Treasury, a plan for digesting and arranging into one act all the laws imposing a duty on spirits distilled within the United States, and on stills, think it would be adviseable to have it printed, and had desired him to ask leave to do so. —Granted.

Mr. Harper, from the same committee proposed the following resolution:

"Resolved that the committee of ways and means have leave to report a bill to authorize the reimbursement of money advanced by our consuls, for the aid of sick and destitute seamen in foreign countries."

Mr. H. said, that twelve cents a day were allowed by law to our consuls for every seaman who shall be found in need of support; but this had been found an inadequate allowance for the present times. Last session 30,000 dollars were appropriated for this object for the last year; he supposed 20,000 might be wanted for this; but the committee thought it necessary to have the expenditures authorized, before the appropriation was made.

The resolution being agreed to, Mr. H. reported a bill for this purpose, which was read and committed.

Mr. H. from the same committee, asked leave to report a bill making appropriations for the support of government for the year 1799.—Granted.

Mr. H. also proposed the following resolution:

"Resolved, That so much of the report of the committee of revisal and unfinished business as relates to the act or acts respecting the compensation of Clerks, be referred to the committee of ways and means."

The compensation of the clerks here referred to had been made a renewal of this act at every session. In order to prevent this trouble, the committee think it will be best to pass a permanent law upon the subject. The resolution was agreed to.

Mr. Gallatin presented the petition of Richard Gernon, praying for relief on account of a vessel of his which was detained at Bourdeaux, by embargo, and by that means prevented from returning to this country within the time stipulated by the law suspending the commercial intercourse betwixt this country and France.—Referred to the committee of the whole to whom has been committed a bill farther to suspend the commercial intercourse betwixt this country and France.

Mr. Varnum, from the committee of elections, reported that Robert Brown, was duly elected and entitled to his seat. Ordered to lie on the table.

The Speaker having declared, that the business first in order was the Bankrupt bill, on its third reading, Mr. Bayard rose in its favor, and spoke at considerable length. Mr. Sewall and Mr. Otis spoke on the same side. Mr. Gordon and Mr. Baldwin delivered their sentiments against it. Mr. Harper and Mr. Nicholas were both on their feet to have spoken upon the subject; but before they had uttered the words "Mr. Speaker," those of "Mr. Allen" had been called by the clerk, for the purpose of taking the yeas and nays; of course (according to the rules of the house) the debate closed.

The yeas and nays were taken as follow:

The protest of Monsieur Beaulieu, and the rest of the minority in the Pennsylvania Legislature, against the late Address to the President of the United States, as published in the vehicle of sedition, contains this remarkable passage: viz—

"We hold as stedfastly in our vices," &c.

Stupid blunder! they affect to tell us something new. How stedfast they are to their vices, we knew long before. But, confident as they seem, they may find themselves less stedfast in another sense, than they appear to imagine.

What ought we to think of the honorable provision made for the heirs of Benjamin Franklin Bache, when the Compositors and Pressmen refuse to be concerned in the dirty business?

It is reported that a dispute took place, some few days since, among the writers in the Aurora, on the subject of the merits of their respective essays; and that, upon their appealing to the proprietor, the very modestly decided in favor of the Irishman's performances.
